WHEELOCK AND HIS WAYS.

NEW YORK, N. Y., April 4.—Wheelock, of All Over, W. H., is one of the keen and successful men of the American turf's speculative side. In the last twelve years Wheelock has accumulated a million or less. He has a domestic establishment in Thirty-third street and lives as he likes. Then, too, he is known as one of the three men "making prices" in the eastern betting ring. Burke and Duffy are the others. Wheelock is one of the directors of the Book-makers Association, and is of good repute with such men as August Belmont, Hon. John Sanford, estate commissioner of racing, and Andrew Miller, of the Board of Stewards of the Jockey Club.

Wheelock was born in St. Louis some forty-six years ago. He is generally credited to Hebraism. Jewry is marked in Wheelock's countenance, demeanor, associations and thrift. Many wagers are annually made upon the angles of Wheelock's pedigree. He is a fairly well read man and is always in line on matters of public interest. This point about Wheelock is shown by the fact that for many years he has been one of, if not the highest, bettor on the Republican side of politics.

Wheelock is of medium height and weight, dark of hair and eyes, swarthy of skin and sparsely decorated with straggling although well kept whiskers.

He is an urbane fellow with a "kidding way," and a smile for everybody. When fifteen years old, he was—to use a "Johnny on the spot," but out of fashion term—seduced from his father's store in St. Louis by old Tom Gallagher and 'Gene Carter, the billiardists.

It was not long before Wheelock got into "the free for all." The others, members of his clan—since more or less well known, were the late John F. Donovan, Joseph F. Ullman, Leo Mayer and W. H. Catton. Wheelock was always a mathematician and quickly became known for facility in getting the better of the market on figure propositions. He soon learned to be an expert card player and also one of the best "bank shot" billiardists. Until he was twenty-nine, Wheelock followed such games for a living. It was in 1887, at Cincinnati, O., that he first took to the "block" as a bookmaker.

This is as he tells the story: "I had $3,000 and lost $2,000. Now, it came to a guess as to whether I should go to St. Louis, stick to the races, or take the train for New York and play cards. I finally and luckily decided on the races. Card playing is precarious. St. Louis isn't much better.

"The tide that turns, etc., was my tide. Among its ebbs and flows I have been up and down. But the ebbs predominated, notably the one where at Saratoga I had two-thirds of a $7,500 bank roll. E. J. Baldwin had the balance. One morning I rode to the track with Mr. Baldwin and he showed me Los Angeles. The filly looked perfectly fit, and I said to her owner: 'She will do for the stake to-morrow, won't she?' He answered, 'yes,' and I told him I was going to bet the bank roll on her. This I did, the money in and out of the book averaging 3 to 5. The race was one and a quarter miles, and Bo Peep was the contender. Away they went, and passing the stand Bo Peep led by ten lengths, increasing gradually so that midway up the backstretch Los Angeles, second, seemed to me to be fifty lengths behind. Never since have I had such a sensation.

"All at once, I noticed Isaac Murphy was sitting still, in a contented sort of way. Bo Peep came back a bit around the turn. Ike never moved, but gained stride by stride and they say still sitting still, shot Los Angeles home in front by a neck. While he was doing it I was dead to the world, and walking around in a trance. From that day on I made money. I was lucky when Royal Arch beat Volante, on which horse I tried to bet at '10 to 1' and again when they wouldn't take my money ($10,000) on Dorian at '15 to 1' when Victorious beat him. By the way, that day George F. Slosson came to me with $4 and said: 'Mrs. Slosson would like to have that on Victorious.' 'Put it in your pocket,' said I. By Jove, the billiardist had to pay his wife $80 as Victorious started at 20 to 1.

"The first really 'great day' I ever had was when, at Washington Park I bet $16,000 at 6 to 5 that Salvator would beat Tenny. On the first local race of the day I bet $5,000 on the favorite, and won. They say that the finish between Salvator and Tenny was a close one. There is a snap shot picture owned by Saratoga which shows that Salvator won by a neck with Murphy looking around. I think Isaac Murphy was the best jockey that ever sat on a horse. Do you know what his orders were when riding the famous match? No? Well! Byrnes said 'Salvator is a good horse today. Go on with him, and run every quarter alike. He can live it out.' His Murphy's rated his horse, per quarter, at exactly 25 seconds."

Wheelock is rich in reminiscence. Here are a few bits: "Just to show how a little thing—or a combination of trifles—may change the features of a betting man, listen to the story of the election of Theodore Roosevelt as Governor of New York: I started in betting '5 to 3' on the 'rough rider.' I kept on betting up to even money and then took 7 to 10, at which price Judge Van Wyck closed, the favorite. Altogether I got on $41,000. The early evening figures showed Democratic gains, and having in my head a table of figures of every county in the state, it didn't take me long to cipher out that by the Herald returns Van Wyck was elected. I considered the Herald to be the more nearly independent of the newspapers. I at once put my $41,000 on Van Wyck. I was tired and went home. The 'phone—via my brother—rang and told me that Van Wyck was beaten. The information was from headquarters and almost official. I hurried back to the Hoffman House and bet $27,750 'quicker than scat,' my brother making memoranda, as I didn't have $30 in my pocket. It is said that I bet that chunk of money from two to five thousand at a crack in just sixty seconds. Then I cried: '$10,000 more on Van Wyck' with no taker just as Mr. J. W. Gates of Chicago, who has always been my friend, jerked my sleeve and whispered, 'George I have just come from Tom Platt and he says Roosevelt wins by 18,000.' You ought to have seen the sensation my plunge produced! Over $50,000 was bet in a few moments on Van Wyck on my tip, as I rushed in as if I had a good thing. It was 9 o'clock when I left Herald Square and then the searchlight pointed south, which meant Van Wyck. At 9:45 I had quit betting. This was rapid action for so decided a shift in the returns and never 'till this day have I been able to fathom the falsification of the figures. However, one may see how the ordinary amenities of life cost me $27,750, as it was 100 to 1 I would have been snoring in bed only to wake in the morning to find my money won."

MEMPHIS AND NEWPORT.

This afternoon will be marked by the inauguration of the western racing campaign of 1899 on two leading racetracks, Memphis and Newport. From both tracks come notes of hopeful anticipations of good racing and paying patronage. Of the two meetings that at Memphis holds the higher place in the estimation of turfmen and followers of the turf, for the reason that its racing program embraces many important and valuable stake races while at Newport the racing is altogether for purses. Still there is always good racing at Newport. The track is one of the fastest in the country and the racing there each spring is marked by the debut of many two-year-olds, that by the close of the year have made good their title to a place in the front ranks of the season's cracks of that age.

The Memphis meeting is always a successful affair from every point of view, and all preliminary indications this year have pointed to an unusually interesting and prosperous reunion. More horses, and more horses of demonstrated good class, are stabled at the track and in its neighborhood than have ever before been gathered there. Their coming together in bloodless strife cannot fail to prove highly entertaining, not alone to those who will be present to witness the sport, but to those as well who from afar will keenly study the fortunes of the mimic warfare from day to day with reference to defining "form" for meetings to follow after.

The Montgomery Handicap, that is the star feature of this afternoon's racing, was first run as the Montgomery Stakes in 1882 at a mile and a half when Apollo was returned winner, with Mediator second. The stake was discontinued for three years but was revived in 1886 with the distance cut down to a mile and a quarter. Modesty was the winner and Johnny Campbell's Punka was second. Again the stake was cut out for two years but in 1889 it was reinstated and fell to the good Longfellow mare Hypocrite and Hypocrite won it again in 1890. Since then the stake has been a permanent fixture but in 1891 the distance was reduced to one and one-eighth miles and in 1896 to one and one-sixteenth miles, the present distance. Its tabled history from 1891 is as follows:

Yr.	First.	Age.	Wt.	Second.	Third.	Time.
1891	Riley	4	121	Vallera	Fayette	1:57 1/4
1892	Faithful	4	121	Balgowan	Riley	1:56 1/4
1893	B'k McCann	3	101	Calhoun		1:56 1/4

1898	Salvable	5	108	Ornament	J. St'dm'n	1:50 1/4

As to Newport prospects, the following from the Cincinnati Enquirer of Friday, fairly covers the situation:

"When the gates of the Queen City racecourse are opened tomorrow for its fourth annual spring meeting everything will be found in tip-top shape. The patrons of this popular racing resort will be surprised when they see the excellent condition of the track and buildings. The course is in excellent shape, and will be fast if there is no rain. The track was fairly alive with horses all day yesterday. The trainers were taking advantage of the fast track by getting in all the work possible on their charges. Below will be found a list of the leading owners and number of horses:

ST. CALLATINE SOLD.

SAN FRANCISCO, Cal., April 7.—W. B. Sink leaves here tonight for New York. He has purchased St. Callatine for $2,500. In the car with her are Orthia (by Ormonde, said to be owned by William C. Whitney), another Ormonde filly of great promise handled by Frank Taylor, also Formero and three horses belonging to A. W. Scott.

Mounce has been suspended for incompetency. His rides on Juva and Reolia today were questioned.

R. Porter Ashe left for New York tonight on a special mission as attorney for Atkins & Lotridge to press their claim for Jockey Clawson's services. He proposes to fight the case in the civil courts unless the Jockey Club upholds their claim.

So far the dead sire Hanover has the following list of foals. Some others are due. It is worth noting that they are his last representatives, as, according to all accounts, the horse did no service this year:

Chestnut filly, out of Jersey Girl by King Ernest.

Bay filly, out of Devise by Sir Bevis.

Chestnut filly, out of Thrifty by Spendthrift.

Chestnut filly, out of Druidess by Stonehenge.

Chestnut filly, out of Queen II, by Euron.

Bay filly, out of Lilith by Ten Broeck.

Bay or brown filly, out of Industry by The Ill-Used.

Chestnut filly, out of Miss Baden by Baden-Baden.

Brown filly, out of Miss Belle by Prince Charley.

track is occupied, and Thursday several late comers were compelled to seek stable room at Latonia. Prospects were never brighter for a successful meeting. Among the better known of the older division at the track are the noted sprinters, Mizpah, Merry Day, Richard J., Our Gertie, Water Crest, Gold Fox, Dave S., Duke of Haven, Sim W., Isabey, Pacemaker, Three Bars, etc. The two-year-old division promises to develop even a more sensational lot than the spring meeting of '98, when, it will be remembered, such good ones as King Barleycorn, Kentucky Colonel, Heliobas, Greatland, De Blaise, Black Venus, Satin Slipper, Ned Wickes and a number of others made their debut at Newport.

"Yesterday morning the track was alive with horses receiving their preparations, and Secretary Hanly estimates at least 200 people visited the track watching the horses work. A number of fast moves were made, and the horsemen generally expressed themselves as being pleased with the excellent condition of the track.

"In the judges' stand will be found Jackson
Smith and J. J. Burke. The starter will be
H. D. ('Curly') Brown, who has always given entire satisfaction. With such officials the public may be well satisfied that their interests will be protected.

"There will probably be ten books in line on the opening day. The following well-known bookmakers have arrived in town, and have signified their intentions of booking at Newport: Seth Jacobs, Louis ('Fatty') Phillips, Ed Austin, Dave Wright, Harry Johnson, Fred Slocum, Max Adler, of New York and several others. Mr. Austin, who will manage the ring, promises that the public will have no fault to find with the odds, as he appreciates their patronage in the past."

Winner—B. c. by Montana—Flirt, by Faustus.
Start bad. Won easily. Montanus was very speedy today and seemed to be much the best. He was easing up at the end. Genua was favored with a good start and ran a smart race. Jennie Reid ran to her best form. A longer route suits her best. Maud Ferguson has gone back and is not consistent. She ran fast to the stretch and then gave it up. Carter H. Harrison did not run his race. It was too good company for Juva. Saintry was cut off and unlucky.
Scratched—11160 Anchored, 107; 11035 Jerry Hunt, 107; Flamula, 104; 11178 Sidelong, 104; 10666 Correct, 102.

Winner—B. f. by Riley—Connie B.
Start fair. Won easily. With her light impost Winifred was best and won without trouble. She has been rated a sprinter, but stayed the route surprisingly well today. Rapido ran an extra good race for him and will do to consider in very ordinary company. He finished very strong and is good. Billy McCloskey is a plodder and did his best. Morana ran disappointingly, but she does not amount to much at her best. The others are very inferior racers.
Overweights—Morana, 4 pounds; University, 3.
Winifred, place, 2 to 1; show, evens. Rapido, place, 3 to 1; show, 7 to 5. Billy McCloskey, place, 3 to 5.

Winner—Ch. f. by Gold Finch—Fleurette.
Start fair. Won pulled up. Flower of Gold won like a high class one, which she probably is. It was only exercise for her. Rachael C. ran very fast down the homestretch and nipped Loch Katrine in the last stride. The latter filly ran her race. Flush of Gold is of the improving order and will do to watch. The others are common.

Winner—Ch. g. by Inspector B.—Turner.
Start good. Won in a sharp drive of three. Tullamore was best. He was lucky in the race especially in the stretch run. He is a cripple and consequently none too consistent. Henry C. ran an honest race and closed strong. A longer route is more to his liking. Solstice finished strongly and will do better. MelkARTH was closing up at the end. Sleepy Jane was short.
Scratched—Middlethia, 105; 11056 Florence Fink, 100.
Overweights—Peach Blossom, 5 pounds.

Winner—B. g. by The Bard—Heel and Toe.
Start good. Won with four driving hard at the wire. Frank Jaubert came with a sustained rush through the last eighth and won in the last stride. Cavallo was off well and in a good position all through. A stronger finisher would have won with him. Annowan was unlucky and lost ground through interference. Peter II. was not at his best but finished stoutly. Coda ran a fair race and will do better presently.
Overweights—McFarlane, 2 pounds.

Start good. Won driving. Gualala's good start gave her the race. Mary Black was pressing her hard at the finish. Both are in good form and very fast. Rosbormonde likes light weight and under it ran a smashing good race. Rubicon sulked and did not run his race. Tony Licalzi got off in the rear and was badly handled. Midlight is out of form temporarily.
